COMING SOON

BON VOYAGE

Time to roll up the rope, tighten the hatches, and draw up the anchor. Time to stand on the deck and review the days that have swept past--days of fine long semesters; days of deadlines and finals; days of worry and frustration; but days of exploration of new horizons; days of sincere relationships of students, instructors and campus staff. Now it is time to reflect the results, the application and the direction. It is semester break time and UNF is ready for its first rest.

A first year as a virgin university in a virgin forest. A building shaped as a ship, anchored in the Sawmill Slough, waiting to sail. The ship of wisdom?? The ship of fate?? Only we the first citizens will really know where the voyage will really end. But for now we will take a breath and with reflections of many events both comic and tragic, we will attempt to rejuvenate and refresh to return for the second trip. Will we meet the "Minotaur" or the "Alligator" or maybe a strange and enlightened being "ourselves" ready for life and whatever it has ready for us.

Students at UNF can look forward to the opening of new, student-oriented facilities in the fall and winter terms, as Phase II of the University's construction heads towards completion. The huge, concrete skeletons which now surround the existing library and student courtyard will soon house a new library addition, more classrooms, offices and student recreation areas when completed.

According to campus planner, Eugene Harrie, the new facilities will become available in one month increments, starting November 15, if there are not any unforeseen construction delays.

There are four buildings involved in the present stage of Phase II construction. One of those buildings, #10, which lies behind the present library and administration buildings, will become the new home for student activities. On its first floor will be located the Student Activities Office, Health Services and an assortment of recreational facilities, including ping-pong, fuesball, air hockey and pool tables. Also included will be several secluded gamerooms for those interested in chess, checkers, cards, and quieter pursuits. Larger areas of the building will be made available as student lounges similar to the one which already exists on the first floor of the campus library.

Other added features of the Phase II construction will include two T.V. lounges, (one with video-cassette capabilities), food facilities, and group or individual study areas.

For those interested in what is on tap for Phase III, it will consist of the construction of a 700 to 750 seat auditorium. Mr. Harrie expressed enthusiasm over the new auditorium's construction, which will include two mini-auditoriums located at the rear of the main auditorium. Each of these mini-auditoriums will be capable of rotating on its own track to completely isolate it from the main stage. In effect, the new auditorium will be three auditoriums in one.

Other construction around campus which may be of interest to students can be found at the athletic field (didn't know we had one, did you!) where locker and shower facilities will soon be built. For those that have sought a cool, refreshing drink of water after a tough tennis match or basketball game, plans are being made to remedy that problem soon.

If any students have questions regarding present campus construction, Mr. Harrie will be glad to talk with them.

CLUB NEWS

The Psychology Club will hold its final meeting of the current quarter Wednesday, August 15th, in Room 1351, Building 3. All interested students, staff and faculty are cordially invited to attend.

The Club's goal is to provide exposure to humanistic as well as experimental psychology. Since its formation at the beginning of Spring Quarter, the Club has sponsored several interesting lectures; for example, an exotic excursion into Zen Buddhism with Carl Shonberg. Excursions to University of Florida's Sleep Labs and Florida State University's Animal Experimental Labs were among several trips sponsored by the group.

Due to the success of such previous events, more have been planned for the Fall. Information regarding Fall activities of the Psychology Club will be included in the Psychology Calendar, which will be available at Fall registration and thereafter in the Psychology Department Office.

Another year has come to an end, and the Propeller Club has a right to be proud of its accomplishments.

The group is the first club on campus to receive a national charter. It was an appropriate distinction, since they were also the first club on campus to become organized and functioning. They have had numerous businessmen speak to the club, as well as visiting their businesses. The group has represented UNF at conventions and panel discussions with various organizations around Jacksonville. Tours have been conducted and luncheons have been given in order for the students to really give the University a favorable impression to the community. Other numerous events have taken place, which puts the Propeller Club in the position of one of the most respected clubs on campus and off. Next year will be even more exciting for past and future members.

On the weekend of August 24th, the Girls Team will play in the Metro Jax Invitational Class B Tournament at Drew Park. It is hoped that many of you will be on hand to watch. The times will be announced as soon as they become available.

Through the sixth week of action the UNF Three Man Basketball League has as its leader the Coppedge Chargers, led by physical education majors Emory Coppedge and Lancelot Green. Their team has compiled a perfect 7-0 record for the season.

ADDITIONS

Many students have noticed the new phase of construction taking place at the Boathouse, the construction of a deck around the existing patio. Ramp access for handicapped students, bench seating around the inside boundaries of the deck, as well as tables and chairs, will be provided.

In keeping with the natural setting of the university, the trees will be enclosed by planters. Treated pine which will have the appearance of redwood is being used in the construction of the deck.

In addition to permanent construction, three 40 ton relocatables have been placed adjacent to Parking Lot #3. These buildings, capable of accommodating 45 students each, will be used as general assignment classrooms.

NAME THE ALLIGATOR

Recently UNF campus received a new resident, an 8 1/2 foot Florida Alligator. The story goes: One quiet afternoon a very adventurous member of the alligator family was seen roaming on a highway west of Jacksonville. Some officials of the Florida Marine Patrol were called and our new resident was taken to our lake by the boat house. It is undecided if he or she is still there, but just in case "it" finds UNF territory comfortable enough to remain, Student Activities Office feels it deserves a name.

How about YOUR IDEA AS TO THE APPROPRIATE NAME FOR AN ALLIGATOR? Call or come by the Student Activities office room #2401 for further information.

Lets get together and find a special name for our new resident. Winner will receive a free lunch!

HEALTH HINT

Safe tennis anyone? Physicians are seeing a good bit of "tennis elbow," which can often be prevented by correcting your stroke. According to Dr. Nirschl, an orthopedic surgeon, tennis elbow afflicts more than half of all inexperienced players. When a player incorrectly uses his forearm for both impact and control, he punches or slaps at the ball, with his weight on his rear foot, rather than stepping into the ball and using his body for power. Punching at the ball creates a force overload in his forearm. This causes the muscles to clamp down too tightly over the radial bone at the point where they pass over its end at the elbow. Dr. Nirschl states this force overload occurs on backhand strokes. The results are a rip in the muscle or tendon, causing pain and swelling. Ice packs for 24 hours are recommended. If pain persists see a physician.

Preventive measures are learning how to stroke the ball correctly, the development of arm strength and appropriate equipment.

THANK YOU

DEAN BAGGETT

IN REFLECTION: Many captains have guided this ship and some have sailed away on their own. To those who have remained to sail again, we thank you. To those who have found more fertile lands, most recently our special friend, Dr. William Baggett, former Dean of Students, we wish to express this small tribute—"Thanks"—but from all of us at UNF. We'll miss you, and we hope you know we are aware of your devoted guidance and the work you did for this university and its students. In this last issue of our first year of publication, we wanted you to know you are still with us, and we thank you for your support.
